'LOOK' EDITOR
TO SPEAK AT UM

MISSOULA---

LOOK magazine's executive editor, Patricia Carbine, will address more than 500 Missoula women and University of Montana coeds expected to attend Matrix Honor Table Sunday, April 27.

Mistress of ceremonies will be Carla Beck, Great Falls Tribune staff writer and former Missoulia women's editor.

The 1969 Matrix Table will be in the Five Valleys Ballroom of the University Center. The event, a campus and community tradition in Missoula since 1931, is sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, a national society for women in communications.

Dinner will begin at 5 p.m., earlier than past engagements, to prevent conflict with the Missoula Symphony performance the same night. In addition to the speaker's message, the program includes presentation of matrix mementos to selected women in recognition of individual contributions to Missoula and the University.

The expanded serving area provided by the new Center ballroom has allowed addition of several women to the invitation list. Invitations are being mailed this week to women who have shown interest in civic affairs, and the reservations deadline is set for April 23.

Miss Carbine, a native of Villanova, Pa., and a graduate of Rosemont College in Pennsylvania, has been with LOOK since 1953. She rose to the position of executive editor after serving as managing editor, assistant managing editor, senior editor, assistant editor and editorial researcher.
